Wednesday of the Thirtieth Week in Ordinary Time

Gospel text (Lk 13:22-30): Jesus passed through towns and villages, teaching as he went and making his way to Jerusalem. Someone asked him, “Lord, will only a few people be saved?” He answered them, “Strive to enter through the narrow gate (...)."

The "myth of the progress"

Today, Jesus mentions the idea of the “Narrow Gate” and how it questions the "myth of the progress". Development based on ideologies that destroy hope in the afterlife and that impose progress as the political and human norm of existence. Even though it is true to say that enormous progress has been made (scientific, technological etc...), some of it begins to threaten the basis of our creation, of our existence.

It is vital that this progress be subjected to some moral criteria. Above all it should be considered that progress, which includes the relationship between humanity and the material world, does not mean the dawn of new man or a new society, as Marxism or liberalism have taught in the past. Man as man is the same, and has not changed in his ways, from the primitive times to modern times of this technically advanced world. The human being begins again from zero with the birth of each individual.

—Jesus, You have shown us the way of human progress from high up on the Cross with eternity as the horizon.
